Space Command Talent Search!

The producers of Space Command have launched a worldwide talent search for lead actors in their groundbreaking grassroots film series.

“Sides” will be posted – ACTUAL SCENES from Space Command that anyone, anywhere, can shoot and put up on a protected YouTube channel to be considered to play lead roles.

The roles for potential contest winners are COMMANDER MATT KEMMER, the main hero and commander of the Paladin, and CADET J.N. BRADBURY, the youngest member of his crew.

ANYONE can try out for these roles and KICKSTARTER BACKERS will get to vote for who wins these coveted parts.

Among the hundreds, perhaps even thousands of hopefuls who try out for these roles, our backers will help narrow it down to a final round of just five for each part, and then they get to vote again for the winner.

Shortly, links will be announced on the Space Command Kickstarter page and Space Command website to where those who want to audition can go to download the scenes and where they can post their videos. Our Kickstarter backers will have access to watch all these scenes and vote.

Matt Kemmer is 25-35 years old, any race or ethnicity is welcome.

Cadet Bradbury is 18-22 years old. Male or female is fine. Must be smart, funny, brave, interesting.

Actors must be willing to travel to Los Angeles to be available to play the part and be legal adults.
